Ruinian International Limited

Media Statement

In connection to the recent reports about a batch of Ruinian-branded oral-liquid amino acid products (10ml x 10 bottles pack), manufactured by the Company's OEM manufacturer – Zhangshu Research Institute Company Limited ("Zhangshu"), failed in a sampling test for inspection by the Beijing Drug Administration, Ruinian International Limited (the "Company", HKSE stock code: 2010) wishes to make the following statements:

The batch in question was manufactured on 8 December 2008 and was selected for inspection by the Beijing Drug Administration in 2009. A report was published on this matter in February 2010.

The issue concerns the fact that amino acid content of the said product is inconsistent with the level stated on the product label. The Company has been imposing stringent quality control standards on its OEM manufacturers. In this connection, the Company had urged its OEM manufacturers to improve product quality. In addition, the Company had added more staff to strengthen quality control on its products. The amino acid content of the amino acid products manufactured by the Company has all met the level stated on the product label.

The Company's self-owned GMP-compliant liquid amino acid production facilities are ready for production. The contract between the Company and Zhangshu is due to expire on 31 July 2010. Until then, the Company will have all of its oral-liquid amino acid products manufactured by its self-owned production lines to ensure that they meet with the Company's quality requirements.

The oral-liquid amino acid products concerned were in mini-bottles packs (10mlx10bottles) and accounted for 1.5% of the Company's total turnover for the financial year 2009.

The Company wishes to reiterate that the inspection results in question only suggested that the amino acid content of that product failed to reach the level as stated on the product label. The product is safe for human consumption.
